Her power suit was corporate chic.

A tailored look, be it a houndstooth vintage blazer with matching trousers or a chic wool coat, will always be a staple aesthetic. A coordinated pantsuit set makes for an elegant, classy, and easy-to-put-together look, after all. This spring, the focus has shifted from classic neutral ensembles to more colorful takes on workwear tailoring and Blake Lively's orange suit from Sergio Hudson is proof. The actor was spotted wearing the colorful co-ords on April 25 as she made her way to a business meeting in New York City. What's more, her outfit was a full runway look.

Orange ensembles aside, colorful suiting is currently having a moment amongst celebrities, overall. Just a week ago, on April 18, Julia Roberts donned a pale yellow suit to appear on The Late Show With Stephen Colbert. Back in November 2021, Sandra Bullock also wore a violet-colored velvet ensemble ahead of her Jimmy Kimmel Live! appearance. Shop Lively's exact blazer and pants set from Sergio Hudson, below, plus identical options from the likes of KZ_K STUDIO and Another Tomorrow.
